We have opened our office in the Diamond, north of the court-house, where one or both of us may be found at all times by persons willing to entrust us with their business. Mr. Craft is a gentleman of sound legal knowledge and great industry, and by our united attention, diligence and punctuality, it is expected the business of our clients will be promptly and well done.

WALTER FORWARD.

Pittsburgh, September 28.

The Ohio River.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that proposals will be received by the subscribers, for improving the navigation of the Ohio River from the city of Pittsburgh to the line of the state of Pennsylvania, a distance of about 40 miles, from this time until the first of December next.

The contemplated improvement will consist in removing the large stones from the bed of the river, and in cutting an artificial channel through the shoals and ripples of a certain depth and width. The work necessary to effect this object would be of a very simple kind. The stones lying in the channel are not attached to the bed of the river—none of them are so large as to require to be blown, and the artificial channel would have to be opened through sand and gravel.

The subscribers reside in Pittsburgh, and would be happy to afford every information upon the subject to any enterprizing persons disposed to undertake the work.

WESTERN HOTEL,

No. 228 MARKET STREET,

Sign of General Washington.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market street, next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Tolhe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to this house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others we deem it necessary to state that its situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of back buildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit a free and uninterrupted circulation of air—and what will give them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, so constructed as not only to afford pleasant promenades, but easy means of escape in the event of any necessity from any sudden alarm of fire. The great Western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travellers' horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some other improvements now making added to his own unremitted exertions to please, the subscriber confidently hopes for, and very respectfully solicits a share of public patronage.

CASH.

I HAVE determined to sell my FARM, at the fork of Chartier's creek, in the county of Washington, fifteen miles from Pittsburgh, consisting of about 214 acres, so low for CASH as to make it a great object for any one having the command of money. Its advantages in point of soil, timber, water, sugar-camps, neighbourhood, proximity to mills, markets, the turnpike road from Washington to Pittsburgh, meeting houses and an excellent college, are well known—Added to these, some enterprising individuals of capital, are now boring for Salt within a quarter of a mile of it, at a lick which has produced salt from the surface, so that no doubt is entertained of their success. This will be useful, not only to the vicinity in general, but it will be of peculiar benefit to the tract hereby offered for sale, as it will afford a constant market for the stone coal with which the land abounds. I will give the purchaser a PATENT in my own name and a general warranty deed. The title is indisputable. I am willing to dispose of eight or ten other tracts, on moderate terms.

THOMAS MORGAN.

Washington, Pa. September 24, 1819.

I WILL SELL,

And take stock of the Farmers & Mechanics Bank of Pittsburgh in payment, NINE ACRES of ground on the bank of the Allegheny river, opposite Pittsburgh, and about 200 yards below Robinson's Ferry—Also a Lot in Mechanic's Retreat. This property will be sold cheap.

JOHN SCULL.

Pittsburgh, July 20, 1819.

N. B. Those persons indebted to me since I declined the printing business in August, 1816, are once more requested to make payment. A failure in one month, from this date, will positively subject them to costs and trouble.

...KING, OCTOBER 15, 1819

...estic Manufactures.

NO. VIII.

...f the picture which it has been attempted to draw, of the moral depravity induced by too great an attention to the manufacturing system, be too highly coloured or smack of carricature, it only needs the pencil of unreflecting charity, and the lighter shades of false theory and blind inexperience to render it more natural and attractive. The tints which give to the agricultural science a more gratifying, because a softer and less glaring aspect, than that displayed by manufactures, although not entirely unadulterated by immoral mixtures, are free from that degree of gloom which would render them offensive to the eye of the philanthropist.

It is not consistent with the ordinary course of nature, and the similarity of effects which must flow from her common source, to suppose that one particular employment should exempt a whole order of men from all those evils to which a different order are exposed. It cannot be supported either by probability or by fact, that the agricultural life is a state free from every moral disease, or that it presents those scenes of Arcadian simplicity and purity, which can only exist in fancy. But if the natural disposition of which all humanity partakes though in various proportions, give to the agriculturalist a tinge of immorality, it is by various circumstances, rendered less gloomy than that which marks the character of the manufacturing class. The nature of a country life and of its employments, has undoubtedly an influence through a physical medium on the moral fabric.—The active exertion, unconfined air and the beauty as well as variety of scene with which agricultural labour is connected, all tend to render the predisposition to vice less operative in those who enjoy them, than in those who are deprived of such advantages. The morbific atmosphere, which in a manufactory is subjected to the operation of condensation is in the agricultural region more diffused, and having a more extensive range of action its influence is consequently less powerful in its effects. Rural employments do not necessarily always require those engaged in them to be crowded together, and by the operation of example and imitation mutually require each other's vicious habits. There are only particular, and comparatively few occasions on which large assemblages of country laborers are necessary, as in the season of harvest, or when the gratuitous combination of their exertions is afforded to expedite some work, which in cities would advance more gradually by the efforts of fewer hands. On such occasions scenes of revelry and dissipation are not untrequently exhibited: but they are rather the production of social conviviality than of confirmed and solitary habit, and before another occasion is presented for their renewal, their effects have time to dissipate, without producing any permanent injury.

The constant confinement incident to the business of a manufactory, like the restraint imposed by bigotry and superstition, is the almost inevitable forerunner of licentiousness whenever opportunities occur. These are but seldom offered, and are therefore seized with a greater avidity, and enjoyed without reflection on the consequences which such enjoyment must produce. But the reverse of this is found in agricultural pursuits. They afford frequent intervals of leisure, without the facility of devoting them to vulgar and dissolute conversation or employment, which are so congenial to the desires and dispositions of those who knowing that they are allowed but few and contracted intervals for indulgence, resolve to supply by the intensity of gratification, the deficiency in the time of its continuance. Their mirth partakes of the transient and often repeated efforts of a man, who under the influence of a raging fever feels a species of supernatural strength, and in his ravings so exhausts himself, as to sink after the paroxysms have subsided, into a state of apathy and infantile weakness.

Idleness is undoubtedly the fruitful source of bodily and intellectual as well as of moral debility. When indulged in to excess, there can be no effects more injurious than those which it is capable of producing, both on the individual whom it enslaves, and the society, the amount of whose income and numerical strength it decreases; while it adds to the causes of immorality and ignorance. But we must not ascribe those beneficial results to its direct opposite, which reason and infallible experience concur in teaching us are strangers to it. Those delicate fibres which connect together the several faculties both of mind and body, and by their elastic quality act as a propelling power on human thought and action, are at least as liable to be broken by too great tension, as to become useless by continuing too long relaxed.

Man is the creature of circumstances; and however strong and universal may be the influence which nature exercises over his feelings, his conduct must frequently be regulated by springs over which she has but a partial controul, and its character yield to the impressions which are made upon it by the adventitious effects created by the modifications of society.

ECONOMICUS.

The Horse of the Columbia river will rank with the finest of his species in the known world. His size is fifteen or sixteen hands, even in a state of nature, unprovided with food or shelter by the hands of man. His form exhibits much bone and muscle, but not the mass of flesh which is found on the fat European horse. His limbs are clean and slender; the neck arched and rising; the hoofs round and hard; and the nostrils wide and thin.—He is equally distinguished for speed and bottom. He runs rapidly, and for a long time; rivalling in this respect all that we have heard of the English hunting horses. In other respects, in the docility of his nature, in his capacity to sustain hunger and hardship, in his powers to provide food for himself and his master, he is wholly unrivalled. He is readily trained to the business of his master's life, that of hunting, and pursues the game with all the keenness of the dog and with equal sagacity and more success. He will run down the deer in the prairies with or without his master on his back, and when overtaken will hold it with his teeth. When rode after game he needs no guiding of the bridle to direct him. He will pursue a drove of buffaloes, and coming up with them, will stop one by biting him with his teeth.—The animal bitten immediately wheels to defend himself with his horn; the horse wheels at the same instant to avoid it; and at this moment when the side of the buffaloe is presented the Indian lets fly an arrow which often passes entirely through his body. The wounded animal always turns out of the drove to lay down and die; the horse and his rider pursues the gang to make fresh slaughter. Another horse trained to a second part of the game, with other Indians, take the trail of the wounded buffaloe, which is butchered and carried into camp.—These things seem incredible; but we have them upon the authority of Lewis and Clark, and a great number of traders who have been upon the Columbia river since the time of their discovery; some of whom are now in this town.

The capacity of this horse to sustain fatigue, and to provide food for himself, is equally astonishing. He is galloped all day, sometimes eighty or ninety miles in the space of ten or twelve hours, and is then left to shift for himself during the night. In the spring, summer and autumn he finds no difficulty. The short and sweet grass of that country gives him an abundant and nutritious repast. In the winter, and towards the mountains, where the snow is several feet deep, his unerring instinct tells him where to search: he scrapes away the snow with his hoof till he comes to the ground, and rooting there with his nose finds wherewith of moss and grass to sustain his life. On the borders of creeks and rivers he feeds on the boughs of willows, and other soft wood which his master has sometimes the kindness to fall for him with a hatchet.

This fine animal is found on the banks of the Columbia, in latitude 46, in the great plain which lies on the borders of this river between the upper and lower range of mountains. His origin is traced to Mexico; thence to Spain; thence to the north of Africa, where the Arabian barb is found in all the perfection of his species. His fine form, his generous spirit, and his noble qualities are preserved upon the Columbia river; and certainly it is worthy the experiment to endeavor to transplant him into other parts of the United States. Many citizens have attempted to do so, but have always been robbed by the Indians of the Rocky mountains. Lewis and Clark procured seventy-three, said by Governor Clark to be the most beautiful collection of horses that he has ever seen together before or since; but the whole number was stolen from them by Indians who followed their trail and never ceased their operations until they had carried off the last. It is to be hoped that the military establishments forming on the upper Missouri will facilitate the attempts which will no doubt be renewed to introduce this fine breed into the settled parts of our continent.

PARTY SPIRIT.

The following from the Spectator very prettily illustrates the difficulties which, in times when party spirit runs high, beset a man who wishes to avoid giving offence to conflicting partizans.

My worthy friend, Sir Roger, when we are talking of the malice of parties, very frequently tells us an accident that happened to him when he was a school boy, which was at the time when the feuds run high between the Round-heads and Cavaliers. This knight being then but a stripling, had occasion to enquire which was the way to St. Anne's Lane upon which the person whom he spoke to, instead of answering his question, called him a young popish cur, and asked him who had made Anne a Saint? The boy being in some confusion, inquired of the next the way to Anne's Lane? but was called a prick-eared cur for his pains, and instead of being shown the way, was told that she had been a saint before he was born, and would be one after he was hanged.

Upon this, says Sir Roger, I did not think fit to repeat the former question, but going into every lane in the neighbourhood asked what they called the name of that lane, by which ingenious artifice he found out the place he inquired for, without giving offence to any party.

MARTIN CANTONMENT, Aug. 16.

The steam boat Western Engineer, reached Martin Cantonment on the evening of the 15th instant, in five and a half days from Fort Osage. On her approach a salute was fired, which was returned from the garrison,

The officers of the Cantonment, hailed the arrival of Major Long with the highest gratification, for whom they had formed a warm attachment during his tour up the Mississippi, not more on account of his professional attainments and enterprise, than his suavity of manner and amiableness of disposition.

A dinner was prepared to which he was invited, distinguished not so much by the variety of viands and delicious wines as by the cheerfulness and good humor which prevailed.

GRAND AQUEDUCT IN NEW YORK.

A number of spirited gentlemen of New-York, among whom was the Mayor of the city, Dr. Mitchell and Gen. Swift, have lately examined the sources of the river Bronx, about thirty miles distance from the metropolis, and found them abundant in water, uncommonly fine, transparent and healthy; they therefore recommend its introduction into the city; which they are of opinion may be effected at an expense the citizens would cheerfully pay, in consideration of the immense benefit they would thereby enjoy.

The accounts from the continent are very ominous. The government of Prussia seems to be agitated in no common degree. A letter from Wisbaden states, that arrests, domiciliary visits and sequestrations of papers continue there, & excite general surprise.—These appear to be carried on at the instance of the Berlin police. Several clergymen have been taken up. They are accused of entertaining republican principles, and of mingling politics with their religious instructions.

A Calcutta article of April 28 says: "Accounts from Java mentions, that all the ports with the exception of Batavia are shut against foreigners, but that the government grant special licenses to load at Sourabaya or Samarang. European articles of all kinds very cheap, and piece goods of all kinds selling at a loss of 50 per cent. Marine stores scarce. Coffee very dear and still on the rise, the duties arise to nearer 20 than 15 per cent.—They have now a naval force consisting of four line of battle ships, six frigates & small craft innumerable, one Admiral was at Batavia, the other at Malacca.

Boiling a man's head to make it speak.

A violation of the dead has been committed in the commune of Neyrone, arrondissement of Trevoux (Ain), by an association of individuals, led away by the grossest superstition. The actors of this profanation having introduced themselves in the night into the cemetry, opened the tomb of the Sieur Antoine Quequet, late Mayor of the Commune. They cut the head from the body, and boiled it in a kettle for upwards of an hour, in the hope that after this operation the head would inform them of some lucky numbers in the lottery. The offenders have been taken into custody, and are to be tried by the Correctional Tribunal of Trevoux.—French pap.

From Poulson's American Daily Advertiser.

AN INTERESTING PICTURE.

A young merchant, whom we will call Morton, was united a few years since, to a most amiable girl, whom he sincerely loved, and who returned his affection with all the warmth and ardour his many virtues deserved. At the time of their nuptials, Mr. M's. business was lucrative & apparently increasing so that he could indulge in the reasonable anticipation, not only of eventual independence, but also of attaining that desirable end, without denying himself and family the fashionable gratifications of the day. Accordingly, he furnished his house in a style of considerable elegance, kept several servants and in other respects conducted his family arrangements on a liberal scale, and which his forefathers would, perhaps, have deemed idly extravagant. His wife too, thinking to do credit to her husband, paid little attention to economy, and rather made it her study to gratify his taste, than to regard the expense it might occasion.

There was a time when such a general prosperity pervaded this country, that prudence herself seemed to justify extravagance. But these times had gone by, and on those countenances where formerly beamed hope and confidence, now sat disappointment and despair. No longer could the merchant engage in schemes of enterprize; for he saw that the more extensive was his business, the more extensive were his losses.—No longer could he place reliance upon the stability of his neighbour; for experience was daily teaching in painful lessons, that the foundations of credit were loosened; and those who had withstood many a storm, now bent and yielded to the calamities of the times.

But still the storm howled only without the dwelling of domestic peace—it had not yet wounded the merchant in his tenderest concerns. Soon, however, Mrs. M. saw the gloom that misfortune was gathering on her husband's brow, & which neither her own affectionate solicitude, nor his children's sportive playfulness, could chase away. Day after day passed, and she sighed in silence. At length she extorted from him the cause of his dejection, and learned that his business had declined, and that he had sustained multiplied losses, which had deprived him of nearly all his earnings. There are women, and those whom the world calls women of sense too, who would have contented themselves with sympathising their husbands, and with supposed that by affectionately sharing his regrets, they discharged their duty. Not such a woman was Mrs. M. She felt deep her husband's misfortunes; but that feeling was an active principle, which prompted her to do what was in her power to assist and relieve him. She immediately commenced a rigid system of reform—her table was not as before loaded with luxuries, and the wine was banished from the side board. Her two children were neatly but simply dressed and she gazed upon them with more heartfelt delight, than when covered with ribands and expensive, useless finery. She applied herself to domestic avocations with unbating diligence, and carried economy into every department of her household.

All this was not done however, without the opposition, and in some instances, the sneers of her acquaintances; but happily the suggestion of pride and indolence fell harmlessly on the ears of Mrs. M. for she weighed them against her duty to her husband, and her affection for her children, and the scale mounted in the air. Her husband, in the mean time, although, perhaps he would have perished rather than have prescribed such a conduct, saw her thus employed, with new delight springing in his heart—and in his approbation, she found at once a reward for past exertion, and an additional incitement to new. From the much decreased expenses of his family, he was encouraged still to struggle against misfortunes and his business soon began slowly to revive; and although he cannot as before anticipate speedy wealth, yet, from the prudent care of his wife, and his own industry and application, brighter propects are opening to his view. To his partner, he is now attached by a new and tender tie of affection, for he has seen that she can share and alleviate the distresses of adversity, as well as adorn and dignify the prosperous station. Happy. M. who has such a wife, and lovely the woman who can thus act! From her example, may every fair learn, in what course of conduct lies the true dignity of the female character.—May they learn, that they were intended by Providence, not merely to float on the surface of pleasure, or flutter like butterflies in the sun, but to be the sweet soothers and consolers of man, when missfortune clouds his prospects, & presses heavily upon his spirits.

The returns of the election in Alleghe ny have all come in with the exception o Pine township. By these it is ascertained that Wilkins, Gilmore, Stewart and Brackenridge are certainly elected to the Assembly. The editor of this paper can not forbear at this time, expressing his estimation of the NOBLE, DISINTER ESTED and PATRIOTIC conduct o the democratic party on this occasion.— Party feeling was offered up at the al tar of public good, and the only question at the polls, was who will best serve us.— The city majority given to himself for Sheriff, so unexampled in the county, has excited feelings, that language is too feeble to express. Whateve may be the fate of the election, he tenders his most grateful thanks to his fellow citizens of every party; to their union alone is he indebted for those sensations of pleasur , which he candidly confesses, no circumstance could create, but the good will of that society, in which his life has been past. He must take another opportunity of touching on this subject; in the mean time the Pittsburgh testimony of esteem for him, is cherished as the happiest event of his life.

NACOGDOCHES, Sept. 4.

THE ARMY.

Another reconnoitering party, which had penetrated as far as the Brassos, returned last evening. They bring the most favourable reports of the prospects of game this fall—deer are plentiful at this time, and signs of bears every where visible. The mast is immense. They met with no royalists.

Captain CRAWFORD, with a part of his company, arrived at head-quarters on the 2d inst.

Lt Col. Robinson still remains upon the Brassos—Lt. Col. Johnson is on his way to reinforce him with a body of troops.

In consequence of the Fell's point fe ver having made its appearance in the garrison of Fort M'Henry near Baltimore, that post has been evacuated and the troops marched to an encampment in the vicinity. [Phil. Gaz.

DREADFUL.—We just announced the arrival of 3000 troops at the Havana. They paraded in great pomp for about 7 hours in the heat of the sun, and we are told that 400 of them were on the evening of that day sent to the hospital, to die of the yellow fever. It was thought that a majority of the persons composing this expedition would cease to be in less than a month! Niles Reg.

AMERICAN FEELING.

We are frequently delig ted with the patriotic feeling displayed in the writings of Paul Allen Esq. editor of the Baltimore Morning Chronicle. We copy with great pleasure the following article from that paper.

There is scarcely a subject that awakens the pride of an American more than the respect which is paid by foreign nations to the star spangled flag of his country. We have lived to see the day when foreign princes, potentates and emperors, have paid homage to a banner, which but a few years ago was a stranger to the ocean. If such flattering testimonials of respect from foreign nations, do but rouse us to a proper sense, to a just estimation of our own dignity we may calculate perhaps for centuries to come, on the preservation of our laws, liberties, habits and free republican institutions. Americans are a nation of emperors governed by no other will than their own when expressed through its constitutional organ. The constitution itself the highest legal authority, which Congress no less than [illegible] of justice are bound to obey, is but an instrument in the hands of the of the people, capable of being amended, remodelled, enlarged or abolished altogether by our fellow citizens, in their collective majesty. Those officers who recently received the congratulations of the emperor of Austria, on board the Franklin, are but the servants of the people: they bear the sleeping thunders of national vengeance while at the same time they are responsible to an higher power for the fidelity with which they discharge so important a trust. With a stern republican dignity these officers refuse all presents from the hand of a foreign emperor. How interesting does the American character appear in the eyes of foreigners, by an incident of this kind: Much has been said, and much written on the formation of a national character: but this is not a subject of legislation—it is the offspring of times and circumstances, and more the creature of accident, than of any thing else: it grows out of circumstances, over which legislation has no control. An incident of the kind mentioned above, does more to establish a national character, than the acts of a thousand legislators could have done.

We will mention other incidents; the victories obtained by our gallant tars in the late contest. Those victories may be said to have unveiled a new world to the eyes of Americans. We a felt new sensations, new emotions, new desires, new anxieties, new throbbings of the heart. We felt that we had risen in our estimation; that the sable cloud of obscurity in which we had been enveloped, was suddenly tinged with a golden radiance; the shadows of night were but the harbingers of the morning star. It may not be in the compass of any power short of prophetic, to ascertain the immediate and direct consequences of those naval victories. At a day, we hope distant, there will be a struggle between the Americans and the English for the mastery of the ocean: those rivals now meet on the element, destined hereafter to be the theatre of a bloody contest, with a sort of fierce civility, an elevated courtesy, as if they were already anticipating and longing for the period, when that great contest is to be eventually decided. The red cross of old Albion and the stars of America, are doomed to gleam with an hostile radience. All these feelings that tend directly to the establishment of a national character, arose from the victory achieved by Commodore Hull. There was before that event, a wild, terrible, slumbering, undisciplined energy, that required to be brought into action. Perhaps at some future day, the trident may be reluctantly abandoned by the hand of Britannia, in consequence, not of the loss of a frigate or a fleet, for these were no novelties—for frigates and fleets she had lost before, and still she remained mistress of the ocean; but because the capture of a single frigate awakened in in the minds of our countrymen a sense of their own tremendous energies.

CANADIAN AFFAIRS.

The Editor of the Montreal Herald, in some remarks on the military operations recently commenced on the frontier, observes—"We have every reason to think our late lamented Governor and chief had directed his attention to the formidable plans now carrying on in the U. States, in their cutting canals and making roads, which are obviously designed to facilitate the conveyance of military stores to their provinces in the event of another war, and for the accomplishment of their often avowed design, namely, to get possession of the Canadas. With this view there is no doubt His Grace the Duke of Richmond had it in contemplation to increase the means of defence of the country, to counteract those measures pursued by the U. S. But the Duke was too sound a politician to blaze out his designs prematurely, and we have seen nothing commenced to excite the least cause of alarm, or to induce a suspicion of a rupture with the United States. His plans were more immediately directed to the internal improvement of the country, and to meliorate the condition of its inhabitants."

The Editor further remarks—"The strong forts the United States government have built on Rouse's Point, which now belong to Canada, will give us the complete command of Lake Champlain, and supersede the necessity of fortifying the island further than as an out post."

The Canadian Courant, says, we have learned from a source entitled to the highest credit, that all the ship carpenters on the other side of Lake Ontario, have been collected at Sacket's Harbor, and taken into pay by the American government.—It is also certain, that letters have been received by American discharged officers residing in this country, from their Secretary of War, holding out inducements to them to re-enter the republican service.—From the particulars communicated to us it appears that they are re-organizing and completing their light dragoon regiments.

WONDERFUL EGGS.

Extract of a letter from River Ouelle, Sept. 18th.

"In the afternoon of the 12th August last, a young girl, eleven years old, named Marie Danjou, being employed in feeding the poultry belonging to Henry Boucher of the parish of River Ouelle, with whom she lives, noticed the cock ill treating one of the hens, and gave him a kick, having at the time in her hand a small stick to keep him off. At this moment another of the hens (which she calls Huppe, for each of them has a name) seeming to take part with the cock, flew furiously on the back of the young girl. She mentioned the circumstance to the people of the house a few minutes after. It must be observed that she wore that day a comb in her hair, and had on a blue and white calico gown with rather a yellow tinge and torn at the skirt.

"The next day about three o'clock in the afternoon, the brother of the young girl, Martial Danjou, aged 10 years, having gone to examine the hens nests and bring in the eggs, found the hen called Huppe on the nest. As soon as she had left it, he took the egg which she had laid, on which he observed, with much surprise, a figure of his sister and the cock. She is drawn in the attitude and dress of the moment; her comb in her hair, her yellowish-blue gown torn in the skirt, the stick in her hand, her foot raised under the tail of the cock and her head turned towards the hen, who had flown at her from behind.

"This day, the 18th Sept. about two o'clock in the afternoon, the young girl found in the same nest, another egg, on which there are figured two small animals. I take the smallest to be a mouse or a rat, and the other a cat. Henry Boucher takes the smallest to be a figure of his small dog, the other the cock.

"The proprietor of these extraordinary eggs is going to Quebec, where he intends shewing them to the curious."

[We have since learned the eggs above described are exhibited in Quebec.]

To Rent or Sell,

A BREWERY, pleasantly situated on the bank of the Ohio river in the town of Gallipolis, county of Gallia and state of Ohio.

This Brewery is in complete operation, and has all the necessary buildings &c. adjoining the same, such as malt-house, kiln, pump &c. There is a piece of woodland attached to the property, where timber and firewood can be obtained in any quantity, for the use of the brewery. Barley can also be had on reasonable terms from the farmers in the neighbourhood, who now attend pretty largely to the cultivation thereof.

This brewery is in a fine situation for business —4 miles below the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, on which river any quantity of malt liquors can be sold for the consumption of the Salt works.

The buildings and pump are calculated for the establishment of a Distillery, which would be of great advantage in Gallipolis where there is none.

Terms will be made easy and accommodating. For further particulars, apply to

Bank of the United States,

AUGUST 24, 1819.

THE frequent demands made upon the Bank for the payment of its notes on the production of half notes, alledging the loss of the corresponding halves; and the liability to impositions and fraudulent practices to which it is exposed by paying such claims, from which it is advised it cannot be duly protected by any evidence which may accompany such claims or any security which may be given to indemnify it, render it necessary to refuse the payment of such demands. They grow out of the voluntary act of the party who separates the parts of the notes, and he alone ought to bear the inconveniences and losses consequent upon the act. But as the practice, however improper, has been a common one, and the Bank is unwilling, without apprizing the public of its intention, to withhold even a questionable claim upon it, these demands will be meet with as usual heretofore, until the 1st of November next. But is hereby given, that the Bank of the United States will not after the first of November next, hold itself responsible upon any of its notes, which shall be voluntarily cut into parts, except on the production of all the parts.

Bank of the United States,
AUGUST 24, 1819.

THE frequent demands made upon the Bank for the payment of its notes on the production of half notes, alledging the loss of the corresponding halves; and the liability to impositions and fraudulent practices to which it is exposed by paying such claims, from which it is advised it cannot be duly protected by any evidence which may accompany such claims or any security which may be given to indemnify it, render it necessary to refuse the payment of such demands. They grow out of the voluntary act of the party who separates the parts of the notes, and he alone ought to bear the inconveniences and losses consequent upon the act. But as the practice, however improper, has been a common one, and the Bank is unwilling, without apprizing the public of its intention, to withhold even a questionable claim upon it, these demands will be meet with as usual heretofore, until the 1st of November next. But is hereby given, that the Bank of the United States will not after the first of November next, hold itself responsible upon any of its notes, which shall be voluntarily cut into parts, except on the production of all the parts.

Pittsburgh Manufacturing Association.

A NUMBER of the Mechanicks and Manufacturers of the City of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, anxious to promote and invigorate that spirit of domestic industry which is so essential to the prosperity of the western country, having entered into an association under the above denomination, inform the public that they have opened a large and convenient Brick Warehouse in Wood Street, between Front and Second Streets, for the reception and sale of the different articles which they manufacture, together with such articles of domestick produce and manufacture as may be deposited for sale, or consigned to their care; and have appointed George Cochran their Chief Clerk or Agent, to whom all orders and communications on the mercantile business of the association, will in future be addressed. They intend to receive, forward and dispose of all goods entrusted to their care, (ed pecially articles of domestick produce and manufacture) on the most reasonable terms, and hope to give satisfaction to those who may plea e to favour them with their custom and patronage From the variety and extent of domestic produce and manufactures which may be collected and offered for sale at their Warehouse, with punctuality in paying over the proceeds, and attention to business, a beneficial result is anticipated, as well to the vender as the purchaser.

All orders enclosing the cash for articles manufactured by the members of the association, or sold in their Warehouse, will be promptly and faithfully executed, at the lowest wholesale prices, without any charge for commission, and western current notes taken in payment

It is also intended to exchange manufactured articles for country produce and raw materials, such as Iron, Lead, Wool, Cotton, Sugar, Salt, Whiskey, Bacon, Hogs-lard, Butter, Cheese, Flaxseed Oil, Hogs Bristles, Linen, Yarn, Rags.

Annexed is a list of articles now offered for Sale.

Charles Postley's Patent
COOKING STOVE
OR PORTABLE KITCHENS.

MANUFACTURED and sold by HENRY MILLER & Co in 2d street, two doors from the corner of Wood streets, Pittsburgh.

This Stove with fixtures complete, comprises every necessary article of apparat us for an extensive cooking establishment.

The different sizes are calculated to do the cooking for small or large families, public houses and Steam-boats, and are so extremely simple in their construction as to be managed with ease by a child, twelve or fourteen years of age.

With this Stove may be cooked, by baking, roasting, boiling and by steam, a sufficiency of meats, fish, fowls and vegetables, to make a dinner for from 5 to 100 persons, while at the same time may be baked from 1 to 8 loaves of bread.

A wooden vessel containing from twenty to fifty gallons of water, can also be kept boiling, for the purposes of washing, &c. All these are done simultaneously and with one small fire.

The circumstance of these Stoves having got into very general use at the eastward, within 2 or 3 years past, particularly in the cities of New-York and Baltimore, with the rapid sale and general approbation they have met with since their first introduction last winter, west of the mountains, are sufficient testimonials of their utility and advantage.

The subscribers having purchased of the patentee the right for making and vending said Stoves in the Western country, is ready to execute with punctuality and despatch, all orders at his Manufactory, as above, where also may be had, Cast and Sheet Iron Stoves, suitable for Parlours, Offices, Stores & Bed-rooms, to which boilers may be attached if wanted.

The proprietors to accommodate persons residing in different parts of the country, have opened a store in Main street, Cincinnati, and also appointed agents as follows—OHIO, N. C. Findly, Zanesville; James Effinger, Lancaster; John M'Coy, Chilicothe. KENTUCKY, Samuel January, Sen. & Co. Maysville; J. & P. Dudley, Frankfort; J. B Bowles, Louisville; Luther Stephens & Co. Town of
PALERMO

THE scite of this Town is on the bank of the Ohio river in Union county, state of Kentucky, immediately opposite the mouth of the Saline river, in the state of Illinois.

The Sale of Lots will take place on the 20th day of October next, under the directions of the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Union county, and will continue from day to day, till Three Hundred are disposed of

will be one fourth down, one fourth in nine, one fourth in eighteen, and one fourth in twenty four months, with a deed of trust to secure the payment.

There is no situation on the Ohio between its source and mouth (with the exception of Louisville) which combines more or greater advantages than

PALERMO

—Union is allowed to be the most fertile county south of Green river, and the whole section of country between the Green and Cumberland rivers is well known to be peculiarly adapted to the culture of Tobacco than any other part of Kentucky. The population is increasing most rapidly, and by many of the most respectable and genteel families from Virginia, North Carolina and she old settled parts of Kentucky. This town is about 1200 miles above New-Orleans and lies in the direct course to Illinois, Missouri, Arkansaw, Kaskaskia and Red River countries, and shortens the distance at least thirty miles instead of going by Shawanee-town. In its immediate neighbourhood, are very large bodies of the richest land in the state—it is about 6 miles by water from the United States' Salt Works, and must become the deposit for the salt wanted in the adjacent counties of Kentucky, and a considerable portion of Tennesee.

PALERMO

is destined to become one of the greatest places on the whole river for steam works, having an inexhaustible coal mine within half a mile of the river, and the coal not a foot below the surface, and also within three or four miles of the town one of the richest ore banks in the western country.

PALERMO

possesses a great advantage over every other situation on the river above it, that steam-boats and others can at almost all seasons of the year come from and return to New-Orleans, there being never less than 12 feet water at its banks the want of which advantage was severely felt from Pittsburgh as low as Shawaneetown last fall, at the former of which places an immense amount of goods was detained on account of the lowness of the water from September to December. An importing house at this place, getting goods from Baltimore, New-York or from Europe direct by way of New-Orleans, and having one of two branch steam-boats, drawing not more than from two to two and an half feet water, would make incalculable profits by supplying the country as high as Louisville and up the different tributary streams of the Ohio with merchandize. This town is laid off on a beautiful plain or level extending from the river to the foot of the Curlew Hills, a distance of nearly a mile, and commands a fine view of the Ohio and Saline river.

Encouragement to Mechanics to settle in

PALERMO;

Fifty Lots

Will be given gratis in fee simple, (including those given to the acting Commissioners) also the use of pit coal for five years, for fuel, the use of an acre lot for five years for a garden, timber for the interior of a two story house, building stone from the Curlew hills, on condition that the grantee build and completely finish in two years, a two story house aforesaid of brick or stone; the same privileges will be extended to purchasers at the first sale, but to no others. The situation is peculiarly well calculated for industrious and prudent mechanic to realize a fortune in a short time; provisions are remarkably low, wages uncommonly high, and the arrivings of a few months can at any time be invested in the public lands by crossing over to Illinois, Indiana or Missouri, which will increase annually for years to come from 25 to 30 per cent.

PALERMO

is very healthy, well watered by a number of the purest springs, and at a distance of about eighteen miles are some of the most efficacious Hot Sulphur and Salt Sulphur Springs in the Western country, which are much resorted to. At the same time will be leased for a term of years, from

15 to 20 FARMS

Of 75 ACRES each, of as rich lands as the earth affords, adjoining the town; and every stick of wood, every fowl, pig, shoat, lamb, mutton, vegetable, pound of butter or pint of milk that the farmer can spare will find a certain and ready market from the steam boats.

The following trades would meet with most encouragement, viz. Brick-makers, Brick-layers, Carpenters, Black-smiths, Wheelwrights, Coopers, Cabinet makers, Tanners & Currriers, Shoemakers, Hatters and Tailors. None however need apply except such as are masters of their trades and sober and industrious. Any letter directed to the subscriber at Frankfort, Ky. (post paid) will be duly attended to.

Patrick Hendren.
